

“Dr. Kashani Kianoush is trained in the fields of Nephrology and Critical care Medicine. He is currently ranked as Professor of Medicine and Assistant Professor of Medical Education; he serves as a consultant in the Division of Nephrology and Hypertension and Division of Pulmonary and Critical Care Medicine at Mayo Clinic, Rochester, MN. His research interest is focused on the fields of acute kidney injury, acid-base and electrolytes, renal replacement therapies, fluid management, simulation medicine, point-of-care ultrasonography, and education. He provides lectures regarding AKI, education, fluid management in ICU across the globe. He has published 228 peer-reviewed papers and written several book chapters.”